(LATIMER ENTERS AFTER RISE: BUD IS DISCOVERD ON.)

Latimer

This telegram requires so a attention.

Bud

It'll get attention all right (returns to table and reads telegram again) Nellie and I will arrive at 12 30 tomrrow Kate Desomond, I'll be at the station at twelver thirty and hen Nellie and Kate see me they'll--- 'fauto heard outsdie' and when Nellie--- There is Tim and his joy wagon now. He is back ahead of time.

Latimer

It is not Mr Mayo there are two ladies in the machine.

Ladies?

Latimer

and they are getting out.

Bud

Gittin' out who in the blazes are they?

Latimer

Whoever they are they are coming in here door bell rings outside L Latimer exits quickly arch L)

Comin' in here (suddenly grabs telegram from table and reads it slowly) will arrive at ten thirty, that blamed two spot is naught 'suddenly realizes') Its them two skirts by thunder (drops tolegram on table goes R looking fiff L)

Kate (enters quickly I followed by Latimer and Nellie) Tell, Mr Mayew we are here if you please.

Latimer

(L C) Mr Mayo is not home just now.

Kate

I am Mrs Tate Desmond, my telegram recieved?

Latimor

Yes during Mr Mayo's absence, he has been away several days. wellia.

Then we will go to our rooms and wait starts R) Bud

(conds down R and stands between Nellie and rach R) Scuse me lady ---(Behlie stops) What might your business me with Mr. Mayo? Mendedo Kate

What iintthe world is the man talking about?

Ltimer

. This is Mr Sheehan ? r Mayo's campaign manager. Bud

Yes so if you'se have got any gentlemanfriends whose voted you's kind deliver, or any little trick like that to turn whylets get busy. Kate

My, good man, we know nothing of this nonsense we have just arrived from N. Y.

Nellie

And I wish to see Mr. Mayo the instant he returns.

Nothin' doin' lady, nothin' doin', no ski ts -- dam (hastily corrects himself) I mean ladies allhowed till after the convention I guess I'll do just as well as Tim

You? (laughs) I hardlyt think you will.

Bud

Oh come now git wise, I want to act like a gent, but a but even if Tim was here "wouldn't let you see him what ever your business is you will have to take me in his place.

Nellie

(goes to him) I am Mr. Mayo's daughter. (ciger falls from his mouth) we (Nellie goes to srch)

Kate

(to Bud) And I am Miss Mayo's chaperon (Buds hat slips from fingers) We will go and select our rooms (goes to Nellie)

(to Bud) as soon as our trunks arrive bring them up (exit arch with Kate)

(umfounded) Well what do you so tink of dat slowly picks up cigar and hat) Tim has got a daughter. (turns to "atime" and he sint been gone a waweek. (puse then suddenly) Why somebody will be casimin' that he has got a wife next.

Latimer

Oh she didefifteen years ago.

Bud

(looks quickly at himand then goes to table) Do you mean to tell me that Tim Mayo is married.

Latimer

He was once, his wife left a girl five years old.

Bud W

Well, this is a fine fix up Tim had a wife, the wife had a advangter and the daught r's got a chaperon (drops in chair R of table and passes hand across forehead) his is news to me and I have knowed him ten years suddenly looks at Latimer) You have only been here three weeks, how did you learn so much?

Latimer

I heard it in New York some yearse go. (goes be ck of table arranging papers)

Bud

and in all these years he never told me.

Latimer

lithink he would not like to speak of it, the wive was young handsome woman but vain and frivilous.

Bud

That's a cinch, even if she wasn't young and handsome.

Latimer

He was poor then and unable to give her the luxuries she craved. She went from bad to worse acc pted atttention gifts, money from other men, and finally ran away with one of them.

(half rising with clinched fists) If I had been Tim Mayo I'd killed---

The man, what good would that have done?

Bud

Not the man but the woman (restrains himself, sits back) well?

Latimer

That's all except that she left the child a year later it was reported she had deind in a London hospital.

Bud

and I suppose Tim came out here to forget and begin life all over again. But I wald have liked to got my hands on that woman just once. (rises)

Latimer

You don't entertains very high regard for woman.

I never k ew many. I knowed one once too blame well.

L ti er

(looks at him) Same case as Mayos?

Bud No, she wasn't my wive. (goes up a sound of distant cheering and shouting, auto horns come nearer.) Latimer

(Bud) Where he comes 'goes to bal cony and looks off I) and the ang is with him (cheers outside) here 'em holler (turns to Latimer) Don't say snything to him yet about the girl am the ---chap --er I'll spring it later.

Latimer

Ver well sir. (tumult outside) Mr Mayo seems popular here.

Popular. He one the whole balmed town ( uto horn heard under balcony) Look at that. (points L) They are liftin ' him bodily out of the machine shouts herad outside "Hurrah for Mayo the next Sanator good boy tim and Bud calls off) Here youse hands off do you he ar? Hands off the boss there (calls down) Gee whiz talk about popularity. Why, they are simply tearing the clothes off of him. Tim (outside) That'll do, that'll do 'shouts and cheers! Shut the door Bill shut 'em out.

Voices

(outside L) Three chers for Tim Mayo (cheers given

Tim

(enters quickly arch I wears long auto coat ripped and hat torn cut and shamshed collar and tis undone)

Bud

Well, where in the blazes have you been?

(look at torn coat etc) In the hands of my friends. (takes off torn hat and helds it out ) Look at that hat, Bud, I thought they weald take my heir with it.

On@O Voices

(outside) SpeechTim, speech -- speech.

Tim

Speach is it (goes to balcony and calls off) How can I make a speech when you have knocked all the breath out of me? God won to my place andtell the bartenders I'll dishcharge them if they let any one of y u go home sober. (noise outside as if crowd was goin away Tim comes down behind table removing cost and throwing it on chair) The The speech that really reached the heart of every enlightened voter is the magic words, "What are you going to have?" Bud

(1 C) Sure the issue now adays aint free silver, but free booze. Jat mer

(at table L of Tim) any instructions for m , MrMayo? Tim

Yes, if you ever go out electioneering, leave your clothes behind you, (goes right and arranges tie and collar in glass over mantel) Well, Bud, how's things look for you?

Bud

Great. Gentleman won't get any votes tonight.

Tim

He won't get any?

Bud

Oh he will get a few. But you'll have a good majority though it is going to cost you so ething.

Tim To hell with the cost. My nomination is going too unuanimous what's the use of us being satsified with a little cheap majority when for a Tew thousand more you can have a hole convention.

Latimer

I wrote your speech last week, sir, here it is. (takes manuscript from pecket goes to L, of table and hands it to Tim)

Tim

(looks over manuscript) I was going to use the same one that I did eslven years ago when I was made coroner.

Latimer

I thought it b ttear to give them something new

There is nothing new to candidates speeches, they all promise that they will do everything that they don't mean to do, and they do everything they are going to do. You may go and telephone over to the place and tell the head dealer to take the limit off every game in the house. (Latimer X's and exits arch R Tim turns to Bud) Them delagates is all over these playing faro, and I may as well get that eighteen thousand I put out to them back. (Wi ks at Bud) are you dead sure of them all tonight?

Bud

Tim

Sure? Of course. They are all bought and paid for and there aint a dishonest man in the bunch. Why I'm as good as in the senate right now.

Bud

Things is bound to go wrong sometime in every man's life.

Yes, and I have had my share once.

Bud

Tim ( pauses and looks at him) Hate to remind you, but----

But what?

Bud

(hesitates slowly rises takes telegram from table and hands it to him he reads it slowly rises) They come an hour ago. (pauses watches Tim) Its---your daughter.

Tim

Yes. (slowly crumples telegram in hand) I'd almost forgot. (telegram slips from fingers)

Gud

(anxiously going to him) It aint brught trouble to you?

Tim

No - -it only reminds me of onet hat is past and gone. (rouses himself notices eigar still in fingers, lays it on table takes pipe and lights it, goes and sits L on couch smoking and thinking thoughtfully)

Bud

(watches him, after pause speaks) Tim old man---

Tim

Yes

Bud

You aint alone and you aint friehdless, forget what was, and think what you are now.

Tim

What am I now? Yes I am Mayor of this town, I'm going to be senator. I've got m new and influence and they have brought me fri nds. When I came here I hadn't nothing but a dollar. (rise) But in gettin' to be what he is, a man should never lorget what he was.

Bud

You might try.

Tim

(turns to him) You have fought in the ring, Bud, and you was a a champion once and youknow that no matter how game a man may be, some time he will get a beating that he nev or Torgets. It breaks his holdrak medickak spirit and takes the heart out of him, he is no bett r than a third rater.

Well?

Tim

Well. I got mine.

Latimer

(enters arch R) Mrss Desmond wants to know if she can see your sir. Tim

(hesitates an instant) Sen her here. (Latimer exits arch)

Bud

(grabs hat from table) Well. I'm goin'. (starts)

Tim

Aint you go ng to stay and meet the lady?

Bud

Not on your life, any house what's got a chap---er ong aint no place for me. Lemme go. (exits L)

Kete

(enter quickly arch & goes to C look expectantly about, turns and sees Tim, smiles and comes down behind him)

Tim

(sees her reflection in the mirro) Kate! (starts and turn to her) Kate

Tim (holds out both hands)

Tim

(g es to her and shakes hands) Well, well Kate. I'm glad to see you once more. It is a long time since we met.

Kate

"ifteen years, ah, I was tw nty rive then Tim

And I was thirty five and now I'm rifty

Kate

But they say a man is only as old as he feels. M and a woman as old as she looks. I am fifty at any rate and jou are still twenty five. (mthey go C)

Kate (leughs) Ah, Tim, you haven't forgotten how to flatter a woman. (sits L of table)

Sure, I haven't. I was only when I saw you just now that I rememberd to tell the tmuth.

Kate

Didn't you receive my letter from Paris?

Tim

Yes, I put it aside to think it over, and this election business drove it out of my mind.

Kate

then you must know how anxious I have been. I decided to bring Nellie straight to you, and we sailed the day after the letter was mailed.

and do you think that she loves this young man, King? Vate

I don't know, he followed us all over Europe and she seemed to enjoy his company (goes to him) Tim I have done my best for the child since she was five years old, but you are her father and in a case like this you should act, not I?

If the boy is honest and square she can have him and every dollar I've got to. but if he aint worthy of my gal, he can t have her if he could give her a million.

Eate

I will call her now (starts)

Tim

Not yet (she steps R C) Tell me is the girl kie--like her mother?

No Tim, she will never cause you any unhappiness.

Thank God for that, all these years I have sort of counted on her to bring me happiness I missed in my younger days, and it would come hard to be disappointed again

She thinks of you as a loving grateful child this of one who as made her whole life bright and joyous, and when she speaks of you it is other knees praying God to bless her dear Father.

To bless her dear father (pauses hand over eyes, sits L of table, pause then recevers himsefl) Kate, lolks here would laugh if you told them I was a relig ous man or a pryain' man. I aint been inside of a church since—(pause then sighs) well, since I've lived alone. But I never lay down at nights that I don't sayin "God guard my beby girl until I hold her in my arms again" and somehow I think he heard me because I didn't ask othin' for myself.

Kate

ies, Tim, I am sure he heard you.

Tim

Kate, what is Nellie goin' to think of me?

(lays hand on she lder) I've known what you are all these years, Tim As for the place she is delighted with the people, especailly your friend Mr. Sheehan.

(looks quickly at her) Did she see Bud?

Yes. (they exchange loos and both laugh) His roughness and ignorance amuses her. She said "Why, Auntie, he is like the brown bear in the Paris circus.

Does she call you Auntie?

Yes.

Tim

I'm sorry for that.

(draws back slightly hurt) I did not think that you would mind.

It might be hard for her to get used to a new name in case that you was promoted to a new relationship (nudges her withelbow)

Kate

(bursts out laughing Jim joins her) we are a couple of old foels. (goes to right, laughing and wiping eyes)

(going Laside) If Bud had seen me then.

(enters Arch R) auntie, where are your (sees Tim and stops) Oh I beg your pardon. (Tim turns expectantly towards her)

Hate

Come here dear. (Nellis goes to her) Don't you now who this is. (indicating Tim)

Nellie

(looks at Tim puzzled) Ho Bow should I know?

Kate

Think Wellie, doesn't he resemble some one, isn't he like some one you have seen before?

Nallie

Some one I have seen before? I don't think so (looks doubtf lly at Tim, then suddenly) Why of course, how studid of me not to see the resmelbance. You are Mr. Sheehans brtoer. (goes to Timwith offered hand, Tim has started forward, stops short and then slowly drops head)

Kate

Nellie---

Tom

(looks up quickly and motions to silence, looks at Nellie an instant slowly takes her hand, pats it a little and then drops it, turns L)

Kate

Nellie, On Nellie (starts twoard her)

Tim

(turns quickly and motions her back, she stope C. Mellie goes L)
Would you mind leaving her alone with me? I wan to speak to her about her father. (Kate bows her head and goes up R) Come back in five minutes (Kate looks at him he lays finger on his lips she exits arch Tim looks at Wellie and goes down behind table) won't y u sit over there. (indicates chair L of table, goes L stops struck by Nellie's manner.)

Nellie

Why do you look at me so?

Tim

I was trying to realize that your are Tim Mayo's child.

Wellie

Am I not like him?

Tim

(shakes his head) No you wint like him. Not one bit like him (goes R of table) Do you mind sitting there, nearer to me. Do you think that you would know you father if you saw him?

Nellie

I am sure of it. I have always pictured him in my mind and Aunti has told me so much about him.

Tim

What has she told you?

Nellie

She told me of his early struggles, how he worked and drprived himself that I might have all that he had lacked. -ow he came out here to build a home and fortune for his child.

Tim

(turns to her) and he has done it. Don't forget that. You are the daughter of a senator of a millionaire (a trifle bountifully)

Nellie

(rise) I don't care so much for that, so long as he is a gentleman as father of whom I can be proud

Tim

(aside bitterly) A gentleman. (aloud going to R of table and speaking with amused lightness) I spose now that you would be pretty sore if you had come all the way from Europ e to fing a father like --- well. like Mr. Sheehan for instance.

Nellie

(laubbe ) Like Mr. Sheehan!

He's not much like the picture you have of your father, is he? Nellie Mo, no. Why if he were standing among strangers my heart would tell me who he was for I need only to lay my arm around the neek of him whol looked the noblest of all to find my father.

Tim Don't be too sure. The father that you have pictured may be mighty di different from the man you will meet. But that aint his fault you know. He was only common and ignorath but he loved his child.

Nellie (rises) But why do you speak of all this to me? To hear you one wo ld alsmot imagein that you were pleasing for your self.

Tim

I am pleading for your father.

Nellie

You are assumming both the right and the necesity.

Maybe so but then I know better than you just how great Tim Mayo's need is. I know that if he d sappoints ou, if he hurts you, it will break his heart.

Ne lie

He can never do that, what do you mean?

Tim

(hesitates then turns toward her) He aint like your picture. He common, and not what you call a getnelamn, but he is yourfather and he has done his best the best he knew how (goes to her) Nellie Child don't be hard with him, don't expect too much of a man who has worked hard to make you what you are, that he aint had time to make anything of himself, only try to love him just a little --- and forgive him. Nellie

(looking wonderingly at him) Why, there are tears in your eyes. (suddenly taking step toward him) who are you?

Tim

(looks at her an instant, then slwoly and pleadingly holds out his hands she looks at him in amazement, still not realizing who ha is draws back a little)

Latimer

(enters with Kate) Mr. Mayo ---

Nellie

(after an instant pause) What --- did he call you? Tim

(slowly) He called me by my name (Nellie utters awe and down on couch ) ou have seen what I am, and now you must know who I am. I am Tim Mayo keeper of a gambling house where square men bet their money on a square game. I am Tim Mayo who came here without a dollar and made a million through hustling and hard work and thereaint one dollar of it that I am ashamedof. I have never done a mean thing, nor a falso thing, nor a cruel thing, I am all this and---your father. (Nellie on coahe looking straight ahead as if hardly realizing what he is saying, Tim takes a step toward her) Nellie Child, won't you kiss me. (Hesitatian) She suddenly breaks down and hides her face in her hands. Tim slowly drops his head then pulls himself together and looks up) What --- what were saying, Latimer?

Latimer

A telephone message for you, sir. Wanted at the place. Tim

Wanted --- by the bartenders and faro dealers and gamblers. (looks at Wellie then rouses himself) All right I'll go the place since

CURTAIN

) SCENE. The same as act One afternoon of the same day, dis covered at rise Tim seated back of table writing a letter. Kate seated sewing. Tim writes and finishes letter sings name)

74 m

There is some class to taht eh?

Tato

Thy, Tim this won't do.

Tim

Superine linen bond, he best money can buy, just the thing for a society correspondence.

Kate

But the heading. (reads) T. Mayo ales, wines liquing cigars . Tim

Sure latimer had a lot of cheap lookin' paper without no pr tin' on it. So I br ight that over from the lace. I'll bet even the swellest society don't often see the letter head with four colors.

(reads and laughs) Sure they don't -- there Tim, I'll give you some paper that will be more attable (puts letter on table)

all right Yate (ri es) I am only breakin' in to society and some one must keep cases for me.

Tate

on should have learned the game sonner.

Tim

They wouldn't let me but chips (goes L) I was a gambler and not good enough for them

Este

But you are still in that pusiness.

Tim

Oh its making no difference now. When a commumen puts a ten dollar note on the ace its gamblin' and society gives himthe cold shoulder But when a senator calls the turn for a housand, its a gentleman's diversion and society is glad to be entertained on his winngings. They used to come and sit at my fare table, but I couldn't go and sit at their dinner table till now. (goes L)

Kate

If you feel that way why do you accept the invitation?

(turns) for the same reason that they sent it, because I can use them in my business. I've got money, position, political power, that is what they want. They'v got votes, that i all that I want of them Besides, I've another reason.

In to What is it?

Tim

(co e down to table) Its Nellie. I want her to feel that I am somebody in my business. Itteldialelal I want to show her that she is as good as their daughters. Let mesee her Paris clothes and her diamonds.

Kate

Diamonds? Wellie has no diamonds.

Tim

She will have them for I've twenty thousand dollars worth in my safe. right now.

Yate

But, Tim, young girls don't wear diamonds.

Tin

Tim- No? (pause) Well then you can wear them (comes around in Front of table) Say Tate when you put on a tairia £8ve got it You'll laok like a elect ic lighter merry go round gehe laughs he is taking out watch) I wonder what keeps Latimer. I sent him to see about my clothes.

Tate

Clothes?

Yes, my dress suit needed pressin'. The last time I wore it was my only appaearnce in society, till this come (picks up invitation)

When was that?

Two years age at the masquerade ball of the gasfitters union. It's a fine suit, and have a swell pinkttie to wear with it.

a pink tie to wear with an evening suit? (suppressed laughter) I thought they usually were wite ones.

mim

Lord no t that ball only the waiters were white ones.

Hate

(puts skien of yarn on table and speak s seriously) Tim, would you be offended if I were to make a little suggestion once in a while?

Mytwhat about?

Kate

About -- about certain things -- that would please Wellie.

(looks at her quickly) I understand. I aint what you would call a gentleman, the child herself showed me that, two hours ago.

Kate, if there is anythin that you can that would make me para for a gentleman sometimes, I know it will please Wellie, and I'll try mighty hard to learn.

You shall not speak of yourself like that, you are the best, truest and most generous man in all the world. (goes to him and gives him both hands)

Kate -- don't you ever get tired of playing a lone hand?

Tate

I don't kne what you mean.

Tim

Wheil on were over there in Euerope among all of them Lords and Barls and Du es--and other aure thing men, did any of them try to cash a bet.

Mate

Cash a bet?

甲生丽

Yes, didn't ou have any offers to become an earl-less or a lordess at the market price.

Kate

But I don't care for foreigh titles.

Tim

Well---ar don't you---don't you think you cold be satisfied with a husband who was stamped "Made in the U.S.X." (pause) For Wellie's ske and mine.

Well not so much for Wellies sake or for you s. I might for my own. (turns to him)

Tim

(throws arms around her neck) america wins! (stoops to kiss her, she laughs and attempts to draw back, he catches her, and kisses her)

Nellie (enters arch just in time to see them kiss) unti (comes down R looking at them in astonisment, Tim and Mate try to seperate. Tim looks at Nellie) Auntie, you are blushing.

Yate Nonserse, I haddn't done such a thing for fifteen years.

Nellie

No? (suddenly len't it just fifteenyears since you let saw my father. Tim hem!

Nellie

Welll-

Wellie

well it has been a long time, between (gres to her wi h a mock serious nes when a womn blushes only once in lifteen years there is something the matter with her heart.

Bud

(enters arch) Say there is a guy down here from the tailors with your open face suit.

Tim all right (Kate and Wellie K'ng R) Of'll be right back . (Ne llie and Kate L conversion, aside Sud starts to exit a Tim akes himby the arm) Bud, you entertain the ladies while I'm gone.

Bud

what me?

Tim

Sure.

Bud

Nothin' doin'.

Tim

(holds him by L arms swing him around and gets on side) Go on now, you have ot to get used to it, eant you to be a gent?

Bud (aside) Hw the hell do I know, I never tried.

Tim

It is a einch just talk easy and natural like, I'll be right beck. (exit R)

(uside looking at Ka e and Nel ie) Gee I have fought Dutchmen, Irish, degoes, and niggers, but this is the first time I was inthe ring agin' a chaperong, Easy natural like, eh? All right. (comes down R) when! Here is where I canthrow stuff and hand out the gnetesl salve. (pulls down culfs settels collar and tie, coughs and then speaks with great politeness) well, Mrs. how is they comin' (Kate and Wellie turn to him) Sit down poils, de seat is free, and de big show goin' on all de time. (Pulls forward chair L of table Wellis and Kate laugh and show amusement, but at the same time intscusted)

Kate Tank you ar. Sheehan (sits L of table Wellie on couch)

Bud Now the both of yo se has had a long tirp now what do you say to taking some thing.

Kate

Taking a little something?

Yes, something too cool youse off and wash de cinders out of our pipe. (Nellie laughs) Ain she a dream? (leans back in chair) Being a gent is a cinch. (to Kate) Ho do you thank the the old sport is looking? I te

...hom?

Bud

Why Tim

Tute

I think he is loc ing very well indeed.

Tim

and say though he is gust as fine as he looks. (leans Aint he though? forward speaking to Wellie) If there is one white man on this earth it i your father kid.

Wellie

You know him very well den't you?

Bud

Do IT? Do you'se see that right am of mine (. tretches out arm ) It won me de championship once, and a thousand dollar, but if it would do your father any good, I'd chop it off at de shoulder. Dats how well I know Tim Mayo (smo se) Was him dat made a man out of me.

10

Would you mind telling us about it?

Bud

Tell, it wint a pretty story when I first -et Tim I was nothing but a bum down and out.

Tate

There must be some unusaual reas n for that.

Bud

No othin' unuseul only a stirt. (lays eiger on table rises and goes R) It was in Prisco when I was champion, that is where I meets this dame --- I meant is --- lady.

Lute

Lady?

No no no, this woman. One of them kind that just has to give a man one look and he's knocked cold, well. I fell for this pretty dame and fell good and strong too. Money? I was simply pudded with long green backs and she too it if me so fast that I betched cold.

Wellie

and you allowed that?

I couldn't help it, I washig and strong, but that kind of strength aint no good again soft hands and dark hair ( oes 0)

I see ---- go on Mr Sheehan

Bud

well one day she skieddoes she skipped out with me manager on a stea er for Japan and took me money, disones everything (pause) and she took my heart along with the rest. (goes R of table)

Tate (rises) and it was then that you met Hr Mayo, and he helped you? (goes around behind table)

Bud

Yes for a year I ne down, I landed here broke, Tim got me a fight at his club with a second rater. I can see the club house now pacted to the wall --- I was still the champion and they he liered the selves hours when I climbed into the ring (excitedly goes down R of tabel) and then.

N llie

Bud

I had gone to far to one back, it went nine rounds --- and

I wasn't champion any longar (desps hear pause)

(goes I of table) I'm sorry that joulost.

Bud (looks at her) That's like Tim's I'd to say that for when the crowd was hollerin' and whoppin' around the new Champion and I lay in my corner forgotte : it was Tim that slapped me on the back and says you made a game fight old sprot, come along with me I couldn' see him but his hand was the only one in all that crowd that was reached out to me. (pases hand across eyes and goes in front of table)

Zute (comed down on his 2) and you have been together ever since? Bud

Ever sines, lady t was him that tooke me, a drunken broken down fighter and made a man out of me, a man that can never stand here and talk to youse two (your I turns) Well it is allover, now we ld you'se two like to go out and see the town with shred devil? Mellie

With whom?

Bud We automobile, I've got a sixty horse power machine what will climb a telgrish pole am come down on the other side.

Nellia (delighted) Oh! (goes to him)

Bud I there that I am kind of a stwey looking party but I mean allinght and if you'se will let me. I am going to give you the best time that I now goes to Zate I of table standing between she and Nellic) Low are ou 'se on?

(laughs) Gladly Mr Sheehan (Tim ento s arch R sees them and stops in anazement)

Bud all right from this time do tree of us is all good push to other. tholds out hand to each witich they take he seems Tim who comes down R) Bello Tim las de as Sud goes to him Kate and Wellie go up 1) You seem to be ge gettin' slong pretty good.

Bud Oh fine, he kid is a perfect little lady, and the other says ahe is a peach.

She day be a peach, but you ata out of my orchard. Bud (looks at him) Sa you don't mean that.

mim (winks and taps himself on breast and nods) Savvy! Bud

Phat already?

Tim

Right off the but.

1777 (grabs his hand and shakes it vigorno sly) Say you are too damned lucky. Wait till I go tell the gang 'exit arch R) Tim

How did you emjoy Bud's society?

Kate (comes down back of table) Oh Tim he is a parfect dear (lauchs)

Tim

and does Wellie thin that I am live

N Tile

(shyl) In that way, yes.

(onto s arch L/ or Douglas King has just arrived sir.

Oh 'springed and delighted, turns toward entrance, Tim and Kate Look L.

(e ters paickly arch I goes to Mellie and takes her hand then as to late and shakes her hand)

Why Mr Hing

III ng

a surprise is it not? But I sailed from Harve the same day that you sa led from Liveroppoll we arrived in New York on the same day and here I am only one train behind you

Thats what you might call some going. (Ing looks at him)

(inicaling Tim ) Wellie's Tather, Mr Mayo this is M King (King goes to him and holds out hand)

I always look a man in the eye before I take his hand and I am mighty glad to shake yours (sheka hands)

Thank you Mr Mayo (Mate and Wellis seemed pleased go to L C)

So you are old John ing's son? Well you have a fine father.

Do you know him?

Tim

We met once, I did a little business for him years go, in Fact I helped out of help in a way

Indeed?

Tim

Yes he fell into ti while I was digging a sewer in front of his bank (King lam hs, Kate and Welli a little ashamed of this)

He should be grateful for that.

Tim

Oh he was hen I ocraped the mud off his pants he give me a dollar. I bought little Nellie a pair of pink shoes with it. Do ou remember those little pink shoes Nellie.

Mellie

I --- I think so. ( ling goes to hor)

Tim

Mou ought to for you were so proud of them that you went to be diw th the on. (laughs ling and Mellie taking aside) and I remember an ther time when I didn't have a dollar -- (looks at them, sees ling holding Mellie hand exchanges looks with late aside) I guess that I forgit what I just rate bared (goes up A turns) Mate! (beckons her she goes up him) I've got some socks that need mendin so you may as well core and begin on the job (exit arch 3.)

(Y and sits on sofa) Now tell me did you enjoy your Muropean trip?

(goes up behind table) It was delightful --- until you lifet.

We isn't that odd, I didn't myself one bit either after that.

But tell me how do you like it here?

Nellie

Its beginning to be very pleanant here. (glances at him and then looks away) I hoo that you are going to like it here.

Ting

Oh I am. I new that I ould the me ent I saw you here.

I like any palce where you are andsvery place seems dull, lonesome unbearble without ou. Is that the way joursel about me? (takes her hand which is lying on table)

I don't know -- (rises from table)

We pursee you didn't give me a chance to kn ... What any place we ld be like without on hen perhaps I had better leave t is place (starts L)

Wellia

No so don't do that (ch stops and looks at her) then that if --if ou go away no when you have just arrived, it would be unkind to father.

Oh well then perhaps I ought to stay a while to please ou father (comes back slowly)

Yes, and he was so glad to see you. I thin: that jou shoul stay a good long hile to

I'll stay till he puts me out. (comes down in front of table)
Nellie

(goes to table speakin hastily) Oh he would never do that. He always lets me have anything that I want (stops and turns away confused)

(leans forward and seizes her left hand in both offis) and do you what me? (pause she hangs her head) wellie dear, its justtoo aks you that I've come cross the land. I have followed you out here to you home to tell you how I want you and to ask your father if I can't have you. (she tears hand away and goes R hand of tables to ding with bac on him) I've followed you here to tell you that I love you, and I entw-heafe welld have followed you her to common the world and back to hear you say that you loved me? (goes to her)

What -- whats the use of going all around the world just for that?

Then say it now dear.

Mellie

I don't know how.

ing

Say, "Douglass, I love you" (puts arm around her)

Douglas --- I it is such a funny thing to may to a man.

Say it a weetheart, Douglas, I---

Nellie

Duglas I--

King

I love you

Nellie

I---I (hesitates) won't it do just as well at first if--if instand of saying it---I were to do it (he turns her to him, kisses her, see hides her face on is she lder, half crying hal loughing is arms arouns her) enters arch d w th late, stops and looks at them ) another ball of yain tangled up ahom (goes to I C w th ato Wellio starts away and goes up 3/ Mr. Hing.

Tim

Ting

Yes sir.

Tin

If you are ready, I will show you to your room.

Hing

Ly room?

Tim

Yes, I have sent for your baggage you will stay here with as now. (gla cin; at Wellie, lays a hand on his shoulder)

(deli nted) "r. mayof'il guess you kno what I mean, and how I feel. im

You will feel at home my boy I hope so , so come along (turens R) Wellie

Uh but wait a moment (Tim stops) ar King has something of a special nature to say first.

h sn't hesaid it got?

Nellie

Well, not to you

7im mell or ling

Tin

(nervously " Well sir I -- I have something to day and I will say it in as few words as possible. Tim

Late, ou had better sit down, this is going to be a protracted session (sits I of table Nate laughs and sits on couch, Wellie comes d wn R C and motions encouragement to Kin)

Ting You se --- Wellie and (glances at her) "ellie and I have --- that is to have had --

Yes I saw what ou had when I came in

Hing

I have asked Wellis -- and *-- I want to ask you if --- if I were to u.s you what --what I have asked Wellie ---Nellie (9mpatentnly) You didn't ask me like that at all, I'll ask him myself. Tim wo as far as you like, my child. What is it that you want M Nellia

It is othing at all to make such a fuss about, its only Douglas. Eing

Mr. Mayo, have told Mellie that I love hee, and that I want to marry her.

Tim

(pauses, becomes serious looks up) What does Wellie say? fellie

We I he has followed me here, and he says he will follow me every where else so I thought that if we were going the same way all ur life we might as well go together.

Tim (looks at her slowly, rise and holds out hard to her) she comes to him, hangs her he ad, he puts his hand under her chin and raises her face to h s) wes like yours don't lie, the love that is shining is mirrored right from your heart, and it is all fro him, all for him (puts hand on head and gently strongs her hair) all that I as is that yould jour old father add to your happiness if he can (setly kiss her face, pases her to Min he takes diamond ring from pokest and pats it on her Hinger Time alls him) Oh Douglas (king ees to him) Here. (takes two keys from pokest) That's the key to the front door (gives him both keys, 18 what's the other (holding u, sec nd key) Thats the key to the wine cellar a ke and motions for him to follow ex i arch a king starts to fibliow) Bellie (tursh) Oh Douglas (he stops up R she goes to C back of table) ... When your things come, put on that lie I like you know the lavender. 1117 all right, dear (turns to go) Hollia and Douglas (getting a littler nearer to himg amneing back at Tate Who takes book fromt able, prete ding not to notice them.

Y u had better leave that key with me (he gives her key) I don't and Dou las, go and -- (raises exit arch a Mellie runs to Late and impulsively throws are around her neck almost apporting her) oh Land

_ate

Nellie, dear.

(taking her around to chair R of table) "on come here and sit down. (late cits) and I will make a bargain with you.

A bargain -- about what?

1811 tell you ever, thing that Douglas said if you wil tell me ever, thing that pape said.

Bosasnae.

Mellie

may e it weemd so to ou become you are used to it. This is more liret. 'sits on arm of table' oh dear him of all the fun I have missed accept myfirst proposal (sighs) liy dear, you are very yojn, one of the firs t things that a girl should learn that a ring on her finger is worth a dozen in te jewelers shop.

(holds out her hand looking at ring) les I suppose it is sort of outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual grace. Its too bad I can only wear one though whe you are married you can wear as many as you wish

Dut they will be just common disouden not engatment rings 'lifts fate's he and look at her ring) I ure is a lovel, too Oh dear it is a great responsibility or a girl to have an engaged mother.

But I am not your mother.

Y u have al a s been to me. I g ild not have more tender lovi care avi from my own dear mother, had she lived muntie, did you k on her very Well

very well?

Kate

No, I twas only a short time after I met her that she---was taken away.?

Nellie

Am I like her?

Kate

Like her? (rises quickly) No, no not in looks or in mind nor in--- (checks herself) No you are not her in anything (goes L)

(surprised) You speak as though you were glad of that. Don't you think that Fatehr would be glad if I reminded him of her?

Kate It I reminded him of her?

(in low tones) I think --- he does not want to be reminded of he r. Nellie

I understadn. Even on he cannot forgot her love.

I don't see how any man could forget such love (goes slowly up L)

(rises and goes to her) -h, but he will have you now, and you must m make him try to forget. -

(co es down L with her) I wish I could dear · (sighs)

Perhaps you can, you will take herplace and so everything she used to do, you will love him, honor him even as she honored him, andecling to him even as she did till death parted them.

Nellie, Nellie, do not talk like this.

Nellie

Forgive me. You don't like to talk of her.

It---it is better not.
Nellie

Then you will never speak of of her again, for I can never do anything to give you pain. I k ow that she was the sweet and good and loving and true, and you are just like her (Kate DXto R)There, we will talk of omething else. Something that will interest you. (goes to her) Lets talk about father. (kate laughs) Do you know that I believe I culd learn to love him.

Really?

Nellie

It can't be very difficult, since ou did, I feel toady as if I could love everybody, (hugs her)

Kate

Douglas would object to that.

Nellie

Do you think that he is going to be byrannical?

About your love, yes. He will want all that for himself.

I suppose so, men are so selfish. Come alog don't lets talk about them anymore. (starts to take her up R)

Where are you going?

Nellie

To lock ourselves in your room and discuss the most important thing in a whoman's life.

Kate

Is there anything any more important to a girl than the man

she is going to marry?

Nellie

Well, I should hope so. Kate

There is? What?

Nellie

That she is going to wear when she marries him. (the start 2 but sopp on hearing Latimor's voice)

Durenll

(enterarch L quickly followed by Latimer, stops on seeing Kate and Nellie, Latimer stop C) I beg jour parond if I truded. I came to see Mr Mayo.

Nellie

This is my father's place of business. It is we who were intruding.

Durnell

(up C) Pardon me, you father you said?

Yes.

Latimer

(introduing) Mrs Desound, Miss Mayo -- Mr Durnell (come Nellie and Kate exit Arch R)

Tim

(enters arch R stops up R C) Mr. Latimer ---

Yes sir.

Tim

If Mr Durnell has finished his busisiness with ou, show him to the door.

Durenll

(goes up L of table) My business is with jou. (Latimer starts to exit L with letters in hand)

Tim

You can stay Latimer, Mr Durenell is going immediately.

Latimer

I have these letters to mail sir (Tim goes down R) Mr Durmell--Durenll

Yes.

Latimer

Pardon my quastion just now, they were merely from idle curiousity, (exit Arch L)

(looks after him) I wonder if they were turns to Tim) I just called at the place to see you

Tim

Did you?

Durenll

But even if you had been there, we should have had to come her to tqlk.

Tim

Oh weould we?

Durenll

What I have to say can't be said in six roulets wheels going and acrowd ten feet deep around the faro tables.

Tim

George, you know me pretty well. You know that you can't make a bet at my tables nor even drink at my bar. You ought to know that you can't talk to me in my own house. (crosses L in front of table)

Durnell (C back of table) Wait a minute. (Tim stops) Mayo, you will make the mistake of your life if you don't liste to me for five minutes.

Tim

You will make the mistake of your life if you don't get out of here in five seconds.

Durenll

All right (takes hat and goes to arch L Tim goes up bact of table Durnell stops and turns) Oh by the way, I met your daughter here just now. ( Tim stops) Do you expect her mother also?

Tim

(tuns and loos at him an instant) Her mother is dead.

Durenll

Too bad. It would have gratified her pired to see you in the senate, if you get there.

(solowly takes out roll of bills counts off several) There is $5000 to say that I get there. Are you on?

Dur ell

No. (Tim smiles, pockets money and goes R around table Durnell comes down) Mayo, do you remeber when you first me? Tim

Yes. It was when young Moran fought anglish Smith at my clubbere. You had Moran Tixed to lay down, and you bet your head off on the Englishman.

urenll You were referees, and you no ified both boxy that if the did not fight on the levl you would throw them out of the ring and they would not get a cent.

AA amn who runs a brace game for two dollar bets, wouldn't turn down $653 50000 You are a crooled gambler and that is the meanest thing on earth. (strikes table) Now as you are tryin't obbluff me you can get action for all that you have got. Show your pile, and I will cover it in ten seonds. I'll time you five that I get the nomination.

renll

I am not after any best. I am after the nomination myself.

Tim

(turns and loo s at him, slight pause) are you crazy, or just plain drunk? Durmell

Oh I know you have got the notes in your pocket and those delgate will do as you say. Tim

You bet they will, for I wone very one of them Why they would nominata a yellow dog---they'd nominate you if I told them to. (laughs) Durnell and that is just what you will do. (goes L)

Tim

(looks at him in amazement) What's the matter with you ? Have you been hittin' the pipe.

Durenll

Sttddown and I will tell you

Tim

sits right of table) I thought I'd close every dope joint in town well let us have your dram Geo.

Durme 11

what would you take to sing the convention over to me and give me the nomination.

Oh you want to put me off no hin ' doin' aint for sale.

Durnell

You are very particular for a man who byss other mens vot

Tim

You ould do the seme if you had the price.

Durnell

Then are you any better than I?

I should hope so.

Durnell

In what way?

Tim

If you could buy them votes, you would use them as you used the loaded dice and the marked cards, the squeeze box in your gamblin' busseto steal ever dollar in sight. I'm doing public service when I buy vote because it prevents men like you from gettin' them.

Durnell

You had better be careful in dealing with me, May o.

Tim

I am. (puts hand in pocket) I have got one hand on my money and the other on my gun

Durnell

I towntt do any good to quargel. I have come here to you with a plain proposition.

Tim

and you have got a plain answer --- I aint for sale.

Durmell

Not at any ordinary price perhaps.

Tim

Not at any price.

Durnell

are youqquite sure?

Tim

(looking pateince Yes I am sure. (rises) For years I have p anamad and worked and fought and bought to git on the top I aint goin' to fall down ow, for all the money in Nevada (goes R)

(goes to front in c of table) Mayo, you have fought me deated me ever since I came here, you ran against me for sheriff, you won, ou ran for mayor against me an won, now you are against me for senator but you will lose (stikes table)

Tim

(turns ) Will I? You are gight when you say I fought you and won and do you know why? (goes close to him) Because I am on the level and you are a crook. (Durall starts lightly and clinches fists, restrains himself) I have used crooks weapons to fight a crook at my own epense and his game, but when other men are in my game, I give 'em a square deal. (Durenll looks at him an instant then goes up L) wait a moment. (Burnell stops and turns) It has come to a show down between us Durenll You come here to try and run a bluff, now I am g ing to cal you and don't you get away till you have shown your hand.

Durenll
All right, you said just now that you would not give up for all the money in Nevada. I was not going to offer you money.

Tim

You had better not. (goes R of able)

Durnell

To avert sorrow, shame disgrace for one you love is worth moretthan money to you.

Tim

What do you meanby shame, disgrace, what dirty trick are you trying? Out with it, I'll face it.

Durne 11

Durnell

And --- and your daughter (Tim starts) -ow will she face it? (goes R of Table)

Leave her name out of this or I'll --- (goes to him with clinched lists) Durnell ( uitelty ) Y ou wil do nothing (Tim slo ly lowers his fist) the is innocent, refined sensitive, your disgrace would be hers.

If you say that in some shamef 1 act in my life, one man can bring shame on me, you lie.

Durenll

I did not say that it was a man (Door bell rings both listen an instant) Mayo, will you resing the nomination for me?

No

Durnell

I offer you a price for consenting. You will pay a heavier on if you refuse.

Tim- Latimer (outside) Mr Hayo is busy now (Durnell goes up and looks off L) Nane

(ouside) he is not be busy to see me (dim starts at vice but doesnot reco nize first looks off L)

Latimer (outside) You must wait till --- sto p you a not go in there. Oh & Nance

Oh get out of my way. (enterquickly arch L followed by Latimer, she comes L C Latimer goes back of table Durnell goes down L of Name Tim R of table he and Namce look at each other for an instant before she speaks) Well, Tim, how are you? Tim (starts violently as she enters gazes at her in stupified silence and instant looks slowly from her to Durnell and back again, whispers as if dazed) Nance --- Nanece Mapo (pauses then suddenly burst out) No no she is dead.

Nanse

Is she? Take another look.

(gazes at her spellboudn) Nance---my wife---alive (staggers back Latimer goes quickly to him and helps him to chair R of table he sits a moment as if stunned, looks slowly to Mance then at Lstimer speaks with difficulty in low tone. ) Mr Latimer please leave the room --- and lic lock that door, (point to R Latimer exits arch R, sound o door being closed and locked outside)

Durnell

(after slight pause) Won't you it down--- ayo? Tim

(starts on hearing sound of her name, rises as she sits chair L of table Tim looks at Durnell) So --- this is what you meant. ( oints to Mance*

Durnel 1

Yes.

Tim

I --- I understand. (aside turning away) Poor Nellie! (Stiffles sob passes hand across eyes they look Durenll) Have you any more to say to me?

Durnell

Presently. I'llsmoke a cigar on the balcony (goes up I turns)

Talk to her first, then to me. (exit balcony D)

Him

(Looks at Nance, she does not look at him aside) My God. (goes up A and stands with head bowed and back to her) lafter a moments pause, glances around at him shurgs shoulders, takes book from table, turns ove leaves for an instant, look at him again t en throws book impatiently on ta bae going in from table stops and picks up Tim 's old pipe looks at it, then hilds it out at arms length.) Lord I wish that I had a cigarette to kill the odor of that thing. (puts pipe on table near chair R and goes L and faces Tim) Well haven t you anything to say to me?

Tim (comes down R C ) It was you who spread the rals report? Nane

It was a young doctor in London, who took a fancy to me, and to throw you off the track he gave my name to an unknown woman in the hospital She died, I lived and enjoyed life. (its in chair L of table) Tim

Whe Se?

Nance

Where? OH Paris St Petersburg, Hong Kong, Manilla everywhere Tim

(goes R of table) and --- and how?

Nance

(looks at him' How does any woman who leave her husband to gain luxuries he could not give her (rises impotiently) Well that is how I lived. Tim

(aside brokenly) My wife --- my wife. (bows head)

Nance

(t rns) But I am tired of it. I have- am tired of humoring men. whom I hate, of heeling fools that I depsise, I've had all the money that I wanted, jewlery luxury, I've seen the world till I don't want to see any more. (goes down L)

Tim

(looks up) and now that you've seen all and know all you crown your whame by a xhibiting it ot me.

Mance

(searily) Oh drop that Sunday School nonsense, I didn't know that you were alive till I landed here last hight I heard in Frise that this was a live town and I thought that I might find some easy money. that's all. (sits on couch)

Nan Tim

How did you meet Durnell?

Nance

Over a drink at the hotel. he spoke of Tim Mayo, Tim Mayo the mine o ner. Tim Mayo the r chest man in town one drink lead to another till --well I told him who I was ---

M22200 Tim

And now that you have found me, what do you want of me?

Nance

I want a home for the rest of my life.

Tim

You had a home once (goes R C)

Nacne

Yes, three room s on the top floor of a tenemant house full of crying babies, quarelling women, and faminly washing2 Uggh!

Tim Thats kind of honesty is a uselless ornament in the house where there is n t much of anything else, most women would pass honestly comeng

our home. This is my home now, and it can never be yours (comes down R)

Nance
Good lord I don't want a home with you in it. Why you we ld be very ornamental (becomes serious) Tim I am getting older and I can't stan the racket any longer. Sometimes in my heart (stops suddenly matching her breath and puts hand over heart, gives exclamation pain and sits a moment with closed eyes breathingheavily then recovers)
That was worse---then usual, the dobro says that it will be my--finish. (rarse) O h if I could only get rest---rest--

(aside looking at her) Rest.

Nance

You will give me enoughto live on.

Tim

Yes only go --- go

Nance

All right I'll go. There is a train east tonight at midnight, send me some money to the hotel. (im silently bows his head in assent—sh pauses) Well good bye (goes up L suddenly) Tim

Well?

Nance

Where is Wellie?

Tim

(starts and turns suddenly) I llie?

Nance

Yes the child, where is she?

Tim

I --- I sent her to live abroad along ago.

Nance

May e I'll meet her there I --- I wish that I could see her.

Tim

Why, so that she could see her mother a fallen woman. (goes up C) Have you falledn so low that you co ld bear to to look in her innocent eyes?

Nance

You have no right to prevent me.

Tim

You have no right to bring such shame on her. Rather that see you 1 ok up on her touch er, I tell you'd pray god to take my sight from me

Nance

Well If I run across her in Europe you can very well prevent it, and if she were here now, I tell you I'd see her before I go.
(Durnell enters from balbony)

Nel ie

(knocks on door utside R' May I come in? (Tim starts, all listen an instant)

Nance

Who is that? (looks from Tim to Durnell)

Durnell

(steps down between them) That M that is Mr Mayo's --- T(T9im gives him a lookw which Manece does not see Durnell continues in ordinary tone) That is Mr. Mayo's stenographer.

Nellie

(outside) May I come in?

Tim

(trying to conceal agiation) No no not now.

She has a pretty voice. It sounds as if she were young and pretty.

Durenll

(looks steadily at Tim) She is young and pretty.

(pause a moment looking at Tim) You look rather embarges ed Time (laughs) I understand. I won't ask you to let me see her. Will you take me to the hotel (to Durnell)

(goes to arch L ith her a dthen stops) Oh by the way Mayo. here is a statement making the proposed changes in the nomination. (takes paper from pocket) You might as well sign it now. (goes to Tim and offers paper, Tim starts and looks at him) Don't hesitate, unless you want your wife to meet your pretty stenographer. The price of my silence. (Tim slowly takes papers sits down back of table and sighs, pen drops from his fingers and his head down) Thanks, now Mrs Mayo (goes to her looks at Tim) I'll present your congratulations to the next senator. (exit arch with noe)

(strikes the table and rises suddenly) The next Senator. And I gave it up for her. For a child that didn't even know me, and when she did know me she was ashamed of me. (starts right and sees himself in the mirror over mantel, stops and looks at himself, passes hand slowly over face, and turns away to table ith hopeless air) I guess she was right----after all I'd make a hell of a looking senator, anyhow. (drops despondenly in chair R of table hands fall on pipe takes it up and looks at it then suddenly beaks down and drops head on arm, table shaking with sobs as curtain falls)

SCECOND CURTAIN

(Tim as before, face hidden on arm, pip held in fingers or right hand over edge of table as curtain desends the second time pipe slips from his fingers to the floor)

(Scene, the same as act two, time evening of the same day large attique lamp on table or chaellier over it lighted borders down to give effect of lamp lighted room, curtain at balcony opeing up opertly drawn aside showing moonlight effect outside, discovered at riving. Latimer seated back of table C Kate standing at balcony opening up L O hands on curtains listeng to noise in street below sounds hard outside as if c owe in street jeeing and hooting his esetc with an occassion shout Mayo where is Mayo.

Voices

(in stre t below) Come on out Mayo He threw us down for Durnell. Tim

Kate

(quickly drose curtains close and turns) Mr. Latimer ---

Yes, Mrs. Desmand?

ate

Youhear what they are saying?

Latimer

I hear yes,

Kate

(c es down L C) It is horrible-horrible, can nothing be done? to stop those dries (sounds outs de as if crowd was going away)

Latimer

(listeningan instant) They have stopped, the crowe is on its way to he convention.

Kate

But what will they say? What are they saying all over town?

They are saying that for the first time in his life, Tim Mayo has done a dish nest thing, and he betrayed those who trusted him. (rises and goes R)

Kate

How can they oh how can they? (sits I of table)

Latimer

How can they say anything else?

Zate

If they only knew the truth.

Latimer

(turns) If they knew as we do, that he has done thing thing to spare his daughter the shame and disgrace of knowing her mother, that would be even harder for him to bear.

Kate

and he refers that shame and disgrace should come to him.

Latimer

I think yes, it can only be said of him that he played a shapp political trick. Many men have done the same.

Kate

But not men like him, all his life he have mae has been guarantee of his honest and fair dealing, why they even say in his gambling house not a dellar was ever won or lost unfairly. (rises) He gave them all a fair chance with himself, won't they give him a fair chance to.

Latimer

I am afraid no unless.

Kate

Unless what?

Latimer

(pause then speaks slowly) Unless something should happen to---remove Mr Durnell's opposition.

Hate

(goes to him) and is there any possiblity of that? Latimer

(looks at watch) The convention opens in an hour. pause and looks at her) An hour always hods poss, Mrs Desmond. (puts watch in poc et and goes L)

Kate

(eagerly) You have some plan --- you think that there is hope that ar. Mayo can --

Latimer

(aside her looking off L) Shhh --- here he is.

Tim

(enters arch L slwoly with bowed head and hands clsaped behind him goes down behind table C and rouses himself) Did you get that from the safe, Latimer?

Latimer

Yes sir, a thousand dollars in large bills.

Tim

And the tickets?

Latimer

I bought a ticket for New York and a state from on the midnight train.

Go to the New Grand Hotel and ive the money and the ticket to the woman who was here this afternoon

Latimer

Very well. (goes up L stops) There was a telephone call from Durnell just now.

Tim

(starts slightly and then restrains himself) What does he want? L timer

H e wants to see you.

Tim

and why?

Latimer

He did not say. He will be here on his way to the convention You will see him

Tim

(slowly) See him. NO.

Latimer

It might be unpleasnat but I think that it would be best (looks at Tim hesitat s for an instant) I --- I really wish that you would see him

Elin Kate

(goes to him) Perhaps it would be better that you should, Tim.

(looks from one to the other) I --- ill see him

I will return before he leaves. (exit arch L)

Tim

(crosses to L) That's the first time that he eve advisede me against my wishes, I wonder what he means?

Kate

Perhaps he think s that he can get Mr. Durnell to withdraw his dmeand.

Tim

He k ows better than that. Durenll holds the cards and he will play them for all that they are orth. Most likely he is comintg to make further demands.

What more can we he ask?

Tim

God knows, but what ever it is, I'll h

give up all I own rather than let Wellie look upon that woman's face. (sits L of table) What have ou told the child?

Kate

Only what you wished It was the hardest task of my life. (goes R of table) I told her only that something had happened that compelled you to withdraw against your consent. That for the reason there would be o engagement with Douglas King, and that you could promise nothing for the future.

Tim

What did she say?

Kate

Nothing. Tim She only looked at me a moden and then sank on her knees be ide the bed and hid her face in her hands and so I left her. (suddenly turns to him) Oh Tim, is this necessary? Must that child's heart be broken?

Tim

Better now than a worse blow in after years. The King s are of an old proud family. Do you think that I am going to have my girl bec me of of them only to bear their scorn and proroach.

Kate

They need never know.

Tim

They will know, for I'll tell them (rises)

Kate

Will you tell them Nellie's mother --- who she is and what she is?

Yes, I am going to write old John Hing and tell him the truth, if he is the man I take him for he won't blame the child, and he will take her for what she is. But until he knows, and untl he shows me that the girl aint going to be slighted and looked down upon there can be no engagment betweent them though it breaks their hearts and mine. (goes L.)

Kate

(rises) She has much to answer for. (goes up and stops) She leaves here tonight?

Tim

Yes, she will pass out of my life, again. After taking from it every bit of light ever bit of hope (sits on couch L) I had all that any man could wish, jut within my grasp and now I have nothing left---nothing.

Kate

(goes to L of table) I know, Tim, you worked to get that nomination and to lose it now is a bitter disappointment.

Tim

Taith that Ismean, my heart was set on in a way, but in losin' it I've learned that it was little in comparison with other things that I have lost. I've been lonly all these years, Ke to and I hoped that I was going to have some company toward the last, but it is not to be, after all.

Kate

No, Tim, its -- it is not to be, it is not to be (sits L of table)

Do you remember the day you and Nellie went away? I took you to tee steamer. As I kissed the little one good bye, you took a rose from the bunch you carried and save it to me sayin' "Till we meet again."

Kate

I remember.

Tim

(goes around R of table) I toook it and with it came the hope that when we did meet again there & be no more partin' that some day I would take you and Nellie both to my home and heart and that as we watched over the child togeth r we might be some commfort to each other as we grew older.

Kate

I --- would have tried.

Tim

(goes to table C) Late you won't think me an old fool if I tell you som thing?

Kate

No, Tim, tell me.

Tim

I --- I kept that rose ever since, today I took it from the place where it has lain for fifteen years and it seemed as if it might bloom again with a promise of happier imes for me and Nellie (slowly draws withered rose from pocket) But it is withered and dead you see, just like the hopes I once had, (slowly crumbles and drops it)

Kate

Ever life has its dead hopes, Tim but we are too old to wast time in idle r grets (R ises and goes to him) at least we can always be the same good friends as when we were young.

Tim

always that Kate---always (grasps bands) Just true good friends that no years can change gives her hand final shake and starts L stope)
Kate---

Kate

Yes.

Tim

I hop this won't prevnet you from --- from darnin' them socks of mine.
Kate

Indeed that is a priviledge, I shall never give up.

I am glad of that. (pause) So that is the end of it. and we are just to be good friends (looks at her) Kate. I have been playing all my life and I have won, I've played for (comes down) But what I value most is the lesson its taught me to night.

Kate

Yes, Tim

Tim

Kate

Ad the lesson.

Tim

It seemed to rise be ore me out of the wreck that I'd spent my lif in buildin't It showed me that those things wheich we long for, strive for, and are of but little worth, there the things that we love, are the real prizes in the game that we play (goes C) Nellie (enters quickly Arch R, stops an instant, then comes down R) auntie it is not true---oh say that it is not true.

Kate

(goes to her) W at is not true, dear?

Nellie

What you told me -- that Douglas and I must part. (Kate turns away) You were only trying me you just wanted to learn if I really loved him and I do -- Oh I do, that was all that you meant?

Kate

Nellie, I--

Mellia

There I forgive you. (puts arm around her) I

It did hurt at first, b t when I sotpped to th nk I knew that youdid not mean it. and now I can laugh at my own foolishness in thinking for a mometh that you would willingly hurt me. See autite, I'm laughting at it no (turns Kate toward her and tries to laugh but still is excited and anxious) Kate

Oh, Wellie, do you think that I would be willing to give you pain, was even in jest. When I spoke to you just now, it was your father's wish. (goes R)

JNellie (1 ughs slowly dies from h r face) My father's wish (pause hardly understanding then looks at Tim who has beenstanding motionneless C) Tim

(slowly) By my wish yes, (they look at each other an instant)

Nellie (suddenly) I understand now, you wish to punish me. Tim

Punish you? ellie Yes, because in a moment of dazed surprise I did not throw myself into jour arms at your first meeting. You were a stranger you did not give me time to even realize who you were. Oh it is shameful

cuuel. (X L)

(up R turns) Nellie, you do not know what you are saying.

Nophbe Tim (motions Kate to silence) You think that I would deliberatley hurt my own child from such a moitve as that? Nellia Then why did you give your consent this afternoon, only to withdraw now?

Grim (slowly) I gave my consent this afternoon because I would give any thing in life to make you happy. Nel lie and how?

Tim

I --- I cannot.

Wellie

Am I still a child to be kept in the dark? I am a woman with a woman's right to happiness. If it is denied me, I have a right to know the reason.

Kate (comes down R of table) Nellie, I have never delected you , never deniedyou one thing in my life. Believe me when I say it is better far better for you to trust your father now.

Nelli e You-must have never denied me, secause I have asked for nothing You have both given me what money could buy now I ask you what cost nothing and you refuse.

Fim To refuse cost me more than all the money in the world (rise; Child, cna't you understand? Don't you know that my heart would break with yours. (hold out arms) Nellia (looks at him, and th nkg s that he has relented, runs to him he takes her in his arms) Ah, I knew that you couldn't allow that. You do love your little girl and she will love you, now that you will let her to be happy that is all that I aks --- only let me be happy. (lays her arms around his neck, raises her face to his --- Tim looks at her an instant then drops his head, slowly removes her amrs and goes L Nellie realize from his manner that there is no hope, drops her Head Kate goes to her quickly Nellie repulses her) You took my mother's place, would she have acted as y u have? Oh if she wer only here now. If she were only here now. (turns away)

Tim (agitated) Stop --- stop I say!

Nellie

(turns quickly) thy should I not mention her. are you afraid to hear it?

(starts) Afraid!

Yes, you start like a guilty man at the sound of her name (pause) and I ill tell you why (goes to him) You know that she was too good to gentle an loving to bring sorrow to any living thing, least of all her own child, and yet you can do it without giving one single reason.

Tim (turns to her) Do you mow that upon calling your mo her's name you bring me so rrow and suffering greater than you can ever know.

Nellie I should bring you shames hame as well (Tim starts) Yes shame to think what she would say to you were she here now (goes up C behind table exit arch R.)

Tim Where are you going?

Wellie

I am going to send Douglas King to you, to demand your reason for withdrawing your comeent. I amgggong to tell him that if you refuse you reason of your consent, I am going to do both without. (exit R) Tim (give gesture of des air) (start to follow her, Kate goes to himmR C turns to her) They say that the sins of the fathers descend upont the children. . But a mother's sine fall heavier and strike deeper than all else (exit 1 with Kate)

Durnell (enters arch L followed by Latimer) Nowthen perhaps you will tell me what the devil you mean by following me all over town and finally following me here?

Latimer This is my place of business and you were coming here anytay to see Mr. Mayo, we both happened to be going the same way that is all. (goes R)

Durnell It seems to me that we have been going the same way all morning. (goes down L) Nomatter where I went, you were always in sight. What do you mean by it?

Latimer The streets are as free to me as they are to you.

Durnell No see here Lati er, I'm ot so blind but what I shold see that you were trailing me. I suppose that you are acting as a spy for Myo, but it w n't do you any good. You can't get anything on me.

Latimer I don't expect to learn anything new about you, Mr. Durnell. Durnell

Then attend to your own business will you?

Litimer I have never neglected my business for one hour since I first saw you, Mr. Durnell, Durnell No. I don't think that you h ve. You are a pretty shrewd fellow Latimer thogh y u don't say very much. Do you expect to remain with Mayo now that he is out of the race?

Litimer

No sir, I expect to give up my postion here very shortly.

Durnell

That's right, don't waste your time with a dead one goes to L of table)
Now how would you like to join me?

Latimer

Join you?

Durnell

Yes, I can use a man like you when I get in the senate.

Latim r

I have no doubt that I could be usefull to you if you were in the Sneate. I may return to New York I have heard from former employers Durenll

From whom?

Latiur

From King Ind Stewart. (glances at him)

Durnell

ah! (goes up I stands looking off balcony) When did you hear from them?

In tonights mail.

Durenll

and they want you back?

Lat mer

They are most anxious for my return.

Dur enll

You had better say here, there is more money in politics than in banking.

Latimer

More than in homest banking perhaps.

-urnell

and dishonesty is risky at times.

Latimer

at all times I think.

Burnell

Well, I don't thin that you would take the risk that Kin and Stewarts other man took, although he got away iwht it.

Latimer

No sir, the risk is greater than he realized or perhaps realizes now.

Durenll

(goes back of table C) Well you forgot King and Stewart and Stay here.

I'll make it worth your hile. You understand?

Latim r

Perfectly.

D rnell

Think it o ver and see me again before I leave.

Latimer

No need to think it over, sir. I will see you before I leave. starts up C Tim enters Arch R.)

Durenll

Hello, Tim. (speaks carelessly goes L."

Tim

(not noticing Eurenll turns to Latimer) where you going out?

Not until Mr Durnell goes.

Tim

Then see that no o e comes in here. (Latimer exit arch R Tim goes down and sits in chair R of table)

Dur Jaell

Well, aren't you going to offer me a chair?

tim

(glances over him) Taint necessary; the Turniture is mine, but you never hesitated to help yourself to other men's property.

Durnull reeling a little sore eh? since you won't offer me a chair, I'll take one.

Tim

Don't forget to leave it when you co.

(sits L of table) Mayo you won't gain anything by reasting me. Tim

Say what you co e for and talk quick.

Durnell

I cam here to make a proposition to you do you want to hear it.

Yes for the quicker you say it the quicker you will go. Durnell

You're thworing up the nomination is going to hurt you here in this to a though youwill still hold a good following. So dar as I'm concerned, it can't hurt me any

Tim

You are right when a man has two black eyes you can't give him any more.

Durnell

Look here Mayo, I am ready to drop this personal realing. I admit that now I am going up the ladder, I want the influence you still have and all am ready to make you ad cha if you care. Tim

Ho much influence would I have left if I made such a deal with you? Durnell

I don't mean t spring it suddenly as if it we e all out and dried. I could dop into your place occassionally and beging coming he e to your house mee in awhile, work up a gradual forgetting and forgiving old scores and when we did get to gether it wouldn't excite comment. Tim

Is that all?

Durenll

No there is more. (goes up R. C and looks off A, turns) Is your daughter about the house?

Tim

(turns quickly) What's that to you.

Jurnell.

I don't want her hear what I have to say Dim

Do you think that anything you could have to say would interest her. Durnell

It might its about her that I'm joing to speak.

Tim

(goes to table) Take care, m Durnell, I've about reached the limit with you. Don't drive me beyond it. Durnell

I am not driving you at all. I am going to state the rest of my porop sition to you and you can do as you please.

Go on.

Durnel 1

(turns to him) I am tired of being the under dog int is town. I want to be something better and I ant you to help me to do it. Tim (slowly) You want me to help you do it. Well?

Durnell

I won't. My election as sen tor won't be enough, I haust have backing, standing, influence. Do you understand?

Tim

I understand that you need that pretty badly.

Durenll and it is your backing that I want. I must have the better element with me and you can get it.

For you?

Durnell You have had it with you for years. They will stick to you in spite of this deal with me. If you make them beli ve it was on the grounds of sentiment

My sentiments toward you are pretty well known. (goes L.)

Durnell

Y s, but there is goin to be a chance in them.

Tim

Is there? Durnell

Do y u know who that woman is --- a drunken wreck -- a slave to morphine -the paying of a dozen in ever land under the sun

Tim And what are you? a common swin ler at cares --- a loward and a cheat A man with a blasted, blackened name, and a blacker heart. (Latimer enters quickly arch R and goes to Durnell. )

Durenll (furiously) I'll take that from no man living. (raises fisst) Latimer

Durnell

(stops slowly lowers arm) Douglas King?

Latimer

Yes, Mr. Douglas King of New York. (Durnell starts, goes down L King enters quickly)

Tim

I am engaged with Mr. Durnell my elf just no ...

King (looks t Durnell who keeps face turned amyga from him) Is that Mr. Durnell?

Tim

Yes. (goes down L)

King Can you swear that this man is Geo. Durnell.

Tim

Why do you ask that?

Ting

Because I can swear hat he is not.

Minnell

what the devil do you mean by this nonsense.

King

Just what I say.

Durnell

Every body in town knows me as George, Durnell.

King

There are en ugh in New York who knew you as Jim Be mard. Durnell

You are crazy.

King

Oh no I am not. You have dyed your hair and sh ved off your beard but I know you and you know ,e

Tim

What's this all about, Mr.qKing?

Hing

It is about a matter of twenty thousand dollars stolen from my father's bank by this man some years ago.

Durnell

It's a lie!

Tim

He tells it pretty straight.

Durnell

Of course he does. He has been drilled by you, and that watch dog of yours. ( points to Latimer) It is is a silly attempt to injure my reputation.

Your reputation isn't such a delicate piece of work that a lie could hurt it/ I think that it is the truth that is going to do the damage this time.

ming

Mr. Mayo, I know what I am talking about. Why, for years I orked beside him in the bank.

Tim

Don't let anyone know, or you will lose your reputation. How about this Mr. ----ahem, Mr Bernard

Durnell

Nothing about it. I'm due at the convention. I'll settle with this young cub when I return. (starts up R.)

Latimer

(motions him back, entire manner changes from here on to one of quick stern authority. ) You will settle with me first. Tim

Lid he touch you too, Latimer?

I time r

My name is not Latimer, I'm Frank Harris, employed by the Bank's Protective Association as a detective. (Durn 11 start: uickly, slips his hand in hip pocket Latimer darsw gun and covers him) Don't draw that gun. My orders are to bring you back dead or alive. It is up. to you, now go! (Durnell slowly drops hand)

Bud

(enters arch quickly comes down L of Latimer) You got him, chim Latime r

But them hand cuffs on him, will you, Sheriff. Sure I got him. Bud

Soary to lineh anyone in y ur home, Tim, but a warrant just come for this here, gent (takes hand cuffs from pocket and goes to Durnell) pon't bite, p4 or I'll put them on your face.

Tim (as Bud handcuffs Durnell) Bud, I have seen you put them on plain drum as, Mexican horse thieves, and that gent who bead his wife to death with a baseball bat, but they never seemed to fit as neat or look so becoming as they do now.

Bud They do look kind of tasy don't they? (holds out Durnell's hands) Tim Better go through his pockets. He has been doing it long enough to others.

(feels in Durnell's pocket and pulls out a reviover) T aint no fit moy for a minister's son. (pockets gun) come on Geo a municipal carry al is waitin' at the back door. (goes up R.)

Durnell (starts facing Tim) So you will get the nomination after all, eh? Tim Well, you can run against me when you come out; it aint such a long step from the jail to the state house. Durnell

No, thanks, I shall meet more gentlemen in jail. (Tim laughs) You give me the laugh, will you? I am going to jail, and you are going to the senate. But the laugh won't be on me. You know what I can tell, and I am going to do it. I'll tell how 'im Mayo's wife --- ttaps him on shoulder, Durnell stops and looks at him) Close your mouth, or I'll make youse out that. (put fist under his nose) Don't corry, Tim has a bird in a gilded cage but he can't so much as chirp. (Latimer takes Durenll off D in R C King exits after them Bud goes to D and turns to Tim? Now it is me for the convention. and old sport they'll hadn you the nomination on a gold platter. (exit D F.)

Kate (enters arch excitedly) Tim, Latimer has told me that ----Tim

It is true, Kate, Mr Durenll goes to prison and Igooto the senate after all. (goes to D R) wait till I get down in the street. (exit D F.)

Nance (enters arch L and stops, looks at Kate who starts at balcony. She has an unnatural manner, has been drinking, but must not show actual intexication. The effect being more mental than physical. Her air and manner being more reckless and coarser than at first, with a moment as if dazed from alegs and 1 iquar. they look at each other an instant Kate at C Nance I C) So you are here. I heard it anc came to see if it was true (pause looks at Kate as if hardly recognizing her) What's the matter don't you know me? Kate

Yes, I --- I do know you thogh it is years since I saw you. Nance

You hoped that it would be heard before you saw me again -- ornaver. Well hat have you goto say for yourself. (goes down L.)

I?

Nanes

Yes, you. What have y u got to say to Tim Mayo's wife? Hate

I don't know of anything that we need to say to each other. Nance

Oh don't you? Well, I have something to say to you. I've something to ask you and I'm going to have an answer to. Kate

I will answer antthin you wish to ask me.

Nance Oh you will then? Tell me the meaning out these stories I hear about you. and Tim.

Kate (turns quickly) What do you mean? Name

I mean the story that was brought this house by some servant or friend of his. The story that is being repeated all over town, that Tim Mayo. my husband is going to marry you.

Kate

Nance, I---

Nance

What is Mr. May o to you?

Eate

I beg your pardon, I suppose you still have some right to the name (go R)

That is more than you have got. If I had 't turned up you'd have had the name too, since that you have got about everything else that goes with it.

Kate

(turns quickly O How dare you too spear to me like this.

Yes, how dare I speak to a woman my husband has supported for fifteen years. (laughe)

Kate

(goes to her quckly) For fifteen years I have earned my living caring I r the child that you deserted.

Nance

And now you have core back to care for the father. (Kate turns away to d with gesture of disgust) Nice state of things! you come back and he takes yu int this home, gives you ever luxury. I come back and the best i get is a ticket to NY (takes RR ticket from hand bag and tosses it on table) Here you have that, for it is you that is going. H'll atay here. (sits L of table) Go and tell the servants to get a room ready for me.

Kate

There is no vacant room.

Nance

All right, I'll take yours. This is my house, and I'll give youtwo hours to pack and get out understand. (pauses and then mutters to herself) Nice state of things. First she takes my child then she takes my husband, and no she has got my room.

Kate

I want nothing that belings to you, of that you may be sure. (goes R.)

(angrily looking at her) You lie you want my husband.

Late

(turns to her) I did want the chance to show him some return for all he has done for me. I wanted him to have a little companionship a little comfort perhaps a little happiness in his home as he grew old. He never had them from you. If he wanted me to try, I tell you frankly I should have done so. I did not know that you were living.

Nance

(has been watching her with a sneer) I don't believe it. You knew that I as here, both of youknew it. That's the reason he was in such a hurry to get me out of town, but I am not going. (after fainting business speaks in quiet tone) See about my room, will you? I am tired--so tired.

Kata

(in gentler tone) You are ill, I think.

Nance

I don't know, I feel all right (pause) Did you ever notice a gas light flickering in the wind, howeit flores up bright and strong then grows faint anddim, the wind lows it up and down, this way and that, till at last---at last ---the light goes out. (leans back with closed eyes mutters to herself) I feel as if ---the wind ---was blowing hard tonight. (pause, then opens eyes and speaks as if dazed) I thought you had gone? Is Wellie in bed yet.

Kate

I don't know.

Name

She should be. It is too late for a child of fours years old to be up. (looks at Kate, put hand to head, stupiefied then rouses herself) (laughs) I guess that I was in a trance. I thought that I was back in old N Y in the old days. You used to come in and help me with the child. Do you remember?

Zate

Yes.

Nance

(leans forward) The old days, she was a pretty kid (pause) Is the pretty now, Mate?

Kate

Very pratty, and very good.

Nance

Pretty and good, so Iwas I at her age, does ---- does she know me?

No she believes you dead. We all believed that you know.

Nance

Sometimes I wish I were.

Kata

Don't talk like that, Nance/ Why you re no older than I. Thi k of thee years before you

Nance

(slowly) It is not type years before you but the years behind you that makes you think. I've seen forty but I have lived a hundred years.

Kate

(goes to her) But there is plenty of the in the years t come for you to forget all about these shta re past.

Nance

Not for me. The only women who can forget are the good .omen.

Then if that memory is to be with you, why cannot it be for some good. Why can't it be a warning and a guide for a spange and better

Nance

No. Yes, I tell you it is far easier for a good woman to change to a bad one. than for a bad one to change to a good one.

I am sorry to hear you say that. I am sorry you won't even try.

(impatiently) No I won't ever try (rises and with an adbrupt change in manner) Where is Tim?

Kate

He went out just before you came in.

Nance

well, I want a few words with him. (goes R.)

Kate

I think that he will return soon if you will wait.

I should say that I would wait. This place suits me all right, and I am in no hurry to leave it. (looks again) I think that I am going to be mighty comoftable here after knocking about the world all these years. (Kate goes to balcony and looks off Mance goes up and looks off arch R) Nice big billiard room out there, that is a good game that I enjoy myself. (goes to D in F and looks off) wher does this lead to Kate

Down to the entrance on the side street.

Nance

Billiard room, tside door. (goes to C stops looking at buffet C) and everything that you want on the buffet) (picks up decanter) Tim has the right idea. (purs out drink and looks at it quas with a baugh) and much as wine has played the mocker and robber and robbed me of honor, well I often wonder what the vinters buy, that is ne half so precious as the stuff they sell (Tim taters arch L quickly with good nes stops suddenly seeing her smile dies from face. She looks aat him and raises glass) Congratualtions, Mr. Mayo. (drinks and sets glass back on buffet)

Tim

(sternly) Why have you come back.

Nance

Akkher. (points to Kate) Then I will tell you I came back to see the woman you put in my place.

Tim

You have no place here, no place in my life.

Nane e

No I don'r suppose that you ant two of us (goes down R.)

Tim

(quietly to Kate) Kate you had better go to your room.

Dapap Nance

and pack your trunks. (Kate continues and exit Arch R without noticing) (goes down L and looks at Nance) You wer drinking as I came in.

That is abo t all a woman like me has to do.

Tim

Is that what helps to make a woman like you? (pause) Did you get the money and the ticket I sent yyou,

Nance

Isve got the money the ticket is there, I don't want it give it to her.

(glances at ticket and then at her) What do you mean?

Nance

Wha do you mean to do?

Tim

It depends on you

Nance

(sareastically ) Oh it does?

Tim

Yes if you go I remain here, if you do not take that train at midnight I do.

Nance

With her?

Tim

(turns aggrily to her) Stop that, do youhear me, not amother word. (seizes her wrist)

Nance

Let me go --- you are hurting my wrist --- let me go. (wrenches wrist from him and goes L stands looking at him panting for breath) One night in Paris --- I put a knife im a man for less than that.

Tim

There are other ways of reaching a man's heart.

Nance

Maybe I didn't try to go further than their pocket books. (sits on couch and looks at wrist) Bring me another drink 9Tim looks at her without moving she looks at him) Bring me another drink, do you hear? (he turns away in disgust) All right. I've got something better. (takes morphine vial from hand bag Tim turns and looks at he she takes tablets and swallows it, Tim goes to her quickly and takes vial)

(looks at vial and then at her) Morpyine, so you have come to that?

No it came to me, like a friaend, a comofrter that whis pers

"Forget" Forget" (rises) Give t to me --- give it to me (snatches it from h im and goes L of table)

(aside) My God!

Nance

(stnads an instant, then passes hand across forehead slowly as if a little confused) What was I alking abou ? Oh I remember I was agory because you took hold of me (laughs a little) That's right I am not angry now, Tim, not a bit. (pause then a long sigh of relief and stretches out arms) Ah I could be angry with anyone now if I tried. (stis I of table) Say, Tim.

(looking at her) Well? Nance

Come here I want to tell you something. (Tim comes slowly down beside her) I didn't mean what I said abou Kate. It made me mad when I heard it, but it is all right now, go as far as you like, I went the limit myself.

Tim

(looking at her) Was their alimit?

Nance

But there is one thing that I want.

Tim

Wha is it?

Nance

I want to see Nellie.

Tim

(starts) Youse --- Nellie?

Nance

Yes, I want to see her, I know that she is the house.

Tim

You cannot see her.

Nance

Why not?

Tim

Did you need to ask that?

Nance

I'm her mother and I have got the right to see her.

Tin

(turns to her) When you took this ring, pour wedding ring --- and cast it at my feet, you cast away with it every right an honest woman has -- (takes plain gold ring from finger)

Nance

Mell, she doesn't know. Do yousuppose that I am going to tell her what I am why can't I see her for five minutes.

Tim

Because the record of your life for fifteen years is written on your face. You can't hide that even from her innocnet eyes. Nance, there has been enough hard words between you and me., Look at this without a thought you or me, think only of the child.

(slowly) Of the child yes.

Tim

Don't you remember how she had the fever when she was a baby why for six days and night you never left her you grew so thin and pale and tired that the doctor said you must have a rest to save your own life.

I didn't care. it was hers that I wanted to save.

(goes nearer to her) and you done it to. She has forgotten all that pain and suffering. long ago. Do you want to make her suffer again?

I want to see her.

Do you want to see her? You are hardly a memory to her now. She remember you in her dreams and her pryaers --- to h r her mother is a saint in heaven (panse) Nance, in God's name do you want her to see you --- now? Nance

Maybe I am not all bad after all, now that I am here with only a wall between s, now that I know that it was her voice I heard this morning, something that has lain dead in my heart all these years has come to life, and it is calling, and calling, I want to see her——I want to se her (rse with clasped hands turns to Tim) Oh, Tim

I'll go away, I'll never trouble you or her again, don't kill the one good impulse my heart has known for years. (goes to him.)

Tim

Better that I should die, than the innocent beliefe, the loving faith the trust of the chi d's whole life, one and for all, you cannot see

Nance

(slowly draws back her face growing hard and cold) All right lif I am so bad so low and vile that I can't even look at a young girl without posioning her soul, you can't blame me for anything I may do.

Tim Do you mean that for a threat?

Nance

(turns suddenly) Yes I do. Do you think that I have no feeling at all? Do you think that scorn and insult don't hurt even such as I? You have given them to me and I am going to pay you back and hurt you I am going to stay hee until Mellie and her mother meet right beofre your face

(enters excitedly from arch L comes down quilly R of table) Its all ri ht now Tim, you are nominated unanimous. (sees Nance and stops at first sound of his voice, she starts in terror and turns her face away, stands t emblinb with fear I of tim) Bouse me, I didn't know there was a lady here. (removes hat)

Tim

It doesn't matter. We have finished our talk now?

Then since the lady's goin' I'll wait and see youse a minute. (goes R back to them)

Nance

(whis ers glancing fearfully around at Bud) Tim---- dian't mean what I said --- I'll go no .

Tim

(not understand her sudden change) Go where?

Away from the house away fom the town . I'll take the midnight train. (tim turns to get ticket fum table) Maver mind the ticket (she stops him) I can't sotp for anything --- now (looks around at Bud, starts fearfully at him goes L C)

Bud

'turns quickly) Shall I call a cab lady? (starts to C stops suddenly reyes fixed on C Namee who also stops L C Bud glances at her an instant then speaks in a dazed whip er) You --- you? (suddenly clinches fist ane rusheds down I of Tim Nance screams and rushes behind Tim and cowers behind him, gazing in terror at Bud. Bud rushes down R of table as she goes down I) Tim, do you know who that woman is?

Tim

Know her yes.

Bud

Do you know that she is the weman that threw me down in Frisco--the woman that I hagee hunted for all these y ars?

Tim

What --- are you mad?

Bud

If Iam, it is all er fault. I tell you that it was her that lead me on, played with me tossed me aside. Twar her that stole my diamonds, money everything and run away with another man. Look at her. She knows what is comin' toher.

Nance

Keep him away! He will kell me!

Bud

Killin' is too good for such as you, but I swore that I would smash your face, and demn you I am going to do it. (rushes at her she screams and cowers behind couch)

Tim

(stops Bud) Bud, don't strike --- my wife!

Bud

(stops )) Your wife? (slowly lowers hand then seizes Tim's arm) Tim for the love of God --- don't tell me that is your wife. (looks at Tim, pauses realizes that it is true, speaks assif dazed) Her---her-Tim's wife and she gave us both the same deal. I geuss she won't hurt you any more than me.

Tim

(looks at Nance, she is dead) NO, BUD? SHE WON'T HARM ANY ONE NOW.

(looks at her) Dead? Well, I'm a son of a gun, she cheated me again. She died before I got a chance to kill her!
